

Building The Education Revolution

The Federal Government with the Department of Education, Employment and Work Regulations is investing in education as part of the Economic Stimulus Plan. Building the Education Revolution (BER) is a $16.2 billion investment that provides world-class education facilities through new infrastructure and refurbishments. There is a planned 24000 projects under the Government scheme with many completed and others still underway.

EDSS has been contracted to support Queensland communities by providing our timely and outstanding services through-out the State. EDSS has been involved with 40 projects in the BER initiative ranging from recourse centres to trade training centres in schools spanning from the Lockyer District, Brisbane and up to Townsville.

State Schools of Tomorrow

State Schools of Tomorrow (SSOT) is a 5 year project worth $850 Million under the Queensland Government's 'Schools of Tomorrow' initiative. It focuses on delivering the best possible educational opportunities for young people by equipping schools with high-quality facilities, resources and technologies. As described on the Queensland Government's Department for Education and Training (2007) website "State Schools of Tomorrow is committed to achieve the Department's long-term educational vision of choice and excellence in state education, local collaboration, and sustainability."

EDSS prides itself on being able to take part in such a revolutionary initiative and has already had outstanding results on 40 projects under this scheme. Our high standards in service and safety have contributed to delivering world class facilities and technologies in schools all over Queensland.
